Vintage, 2013. Book Condition: New. Brand New, Unread Copy in Perfect Condition. A+ Customer Service! Summary: "With her characteristically sharp-edged humor and luminous storytelling, Lepore regales us with stories that follow the stages of life. . . her inspired commentary on our shared social history offers a fresh approach to our changing views of life and death." - Publishers Weekly "A trenchant and fascinating intellectual history of life and death . . . elegant." -Dani Shapiro, The New York Times Book Review "A stunning meditation on three questions that have dominated serious reflection about human nature and cultures for centuries: How does life begin? What does it mean? What happens when we die? . . . Lepore's refreshing and often humorous insights breathe fresh air into these everlasting matters." -Bookpage "A breezy, informative, wide-ranging book . . . singular, always stimulating." - The American Scholar "Lepore's prose is thoroughly engaging and witty . . . covers enough of mankind's earnest curiosity about life and death to both entertain and provoke thought." - Booklist "Lepore chooses quirky, though always revealing, lenses through which is examine the changing definitions of conception, infancy, childhood, puberty, marriage, middle age, parenthood, old age, death, and immortality. . . . Through sheer force of charisma, Lepore keeps her readers on track: this book, with all its detours and winding turns, is a journey worth taking." - Library Journal "[Lepore] manages to spin a larger narrative that both fascinates and informs, showing that our taken-for-granted ideas about every stage of life are culturally specific, very much a product of our times." -Rachel Newcomb, The Washington Post "Engaging. . . . Lepore writes about our striving to understand our existence. The Mansion of Happiness is an important addition to the effort." - San Francisco Chronicle "Lepore has a...
