At eleven o'clock members of the Senior Class gave interesting demonstrations in Clarke Hall. Clara E. Majors illustrated various ways of preserving milk; Walter C. Webb, Joshua W. Williams, and James A. Harris together presented A Demonstration Agent at Work, showing most effectively the value of scientific agriculture in detecting frauds on the market; Florence Wilson gave her audience all possible points on making a shirt waist; and Milton J. Carr explained the advantages of Rift Flooring. At the afternoon exercises in Ogden Hall four others of the graduating class gave their Anniversary papers. Mabie M. Stephen talked on Art Applied to Homemaking, demonstrating as she talked by completely furnishing an attractive and artistic living-room on the stage, using a...
